Family Violence Death Review:

Implications for Practice

We are excited to welcome presenter Rachel Smith, the Lead Coordinator for the Family Violence Death Mortality Review Committee. One of her roles is to support the development of a systematic family violence death review process. Rachel's prior work in the family violence sector has been across local government, health and the voluntary sector in the UK and New Zealand.

The Family Violence Death Review Committee released their latest report in June, and there is much we can learn as practitioners to provide an even better response for families that are dealing with violence.

There are only 50 spaces available for this FREE seminar, so RSVP quickly!

Refreshments are available for purchase on Level 5 of the hospital.
